The Age of Aquarius is finally in session, the sun in its sign in vernal precession, & as has been noted in premature plays, the stellar location syncs with New Age, and coming together of all that's asunder, a righting of wrongs a fixing of blunders.	In pedestrian terms it refers to the porter, of 5 gallon jugs filled up with water. Equivalent to the Culligan Guy, —minus the truck since he doesn't drive. he did try to Segway for one distribution, but balance was iffy and failed execution.	The governing planet is certainly famous, as punchline for jokes 'cause it's called Uranus. A gigantic ice-ball cloaked in methane, Leaving no doubt to: "what's in a name." & though its regressive to giggle at gasses, we all do, 'cause poo-poo is too good to pass up.	Beyond such concerns of commonplace lore, there's plenty a watered down Age has in store, as the stasis of life is fully dependent— on global reform, & things more transcendent. Stuff of the soul the spirit and heart, what once was our goal but now is apart.	It's time to be stewards be brothers, and friends. It's time for concern beyond our own ends, to offer a hand— to those that are needy, to help where you can & never be greedy, to realize that which we do will affect, * everything else * since all Life connects.

Super Bowl Do's You Don't Want to Miss!

The most important thing to remember when hosting a Super Bowl party is to have the game on. Although it's easy to be distracted by shiny, football-shaped objects on QVC, old game day footage on ESPN, and live tornado coverage on the weather channel, this is one TV show your guests are going to want to watch live. You'll know you've found the right channel if gameplay commences on a field with no hoop, net or floor, and your guests audibly dissent--and hurl knickknacks--as you surf through it. Match their colorful suggestions by maximizing your TV's color saturation, being sure to keep picture in picture of that fascinating weather channel, all the same.

Another key ingredient to Super Bowl party success is the refreshments. Yes, decorations are nice, but are they really as memorable as a kegger stand on a pony keg? An impromptu, habanero-eating contest? A fun, finger-food fight during commercials? A little tangerine, body paint ought to indicate which way your pennant's blowing, along with an inebriated, inaccurate, half-time recap of a game back in '94, while the money you save on doodads can be applied toward thematic snacks!

Because a balance of regionally-correct goodies will insure your festivities are the topic of Water Cooler Monday. Better than Bathroom Wall Tuesday by yards, this coveted conversation fodder can focus on your fodder--if the fodder's right. Frankly, with Peyton, Massive-head Manning in the head to head, the nibbles pretty much decide themselves. His hefty helmet makes a fine, super-sized, snack bowl, especially when loaded down with Bronco-orange Cheetos. (the 'extreme' variety polled best) Don't forget to set up a Denver omelet bar, too, right along with Hot Wings made from actual SeaHawks, and a Gatorade fountain adjacent that pony keg, but whatever you do, don't offer Rocky Mountain High brownies at your game day gig. Not unless you live in that leaf-friendly state. A scoop of Molly Moon ice cream is just as transcendental, and for those skipping the sweet stuff, well, Seattleites like a strong, cuppa Joe.

Whether it's whiskey shots coordinated to the Sheriff's pre-snap routine, or Pepsi Challenge issued for each pass the 2012 Rookie of the Year completes, whatever extras you add to round out the fun, remember: it's the game and grub that will linger in your guests' memories. On their facebook pages, also, so be sure to make the duck face.

Egg Facials

Look at her.

Look.

Did you see what she's wearing?

Oh...huh.

Disgusting...

--right?

Her heart. Her whole heart! You can see it! There. On her sleeve...

I don't see anything up her sleeve, though...

There. Next to the slap mark on her wrist...

I see a splinter in her eye, but her cheek is turned, and--hold up. Is that a head start...?...Or is she nude--wait. I see what it is. She's practically transparent is what she is. That's what it is...

That's an eye-opener, huh?

Is her heart even in the right place?

And her emotions!

(foolish heart)

They're all the way up to there--

Over the top.

Serves her right for being used. 'Flaunting all that feeling like that.

Are emotions that big even allowed on roller-coasters?

©Karen Robiscoe

'Practically kicking her in the teeth.

They sure are. She had it coming, all right...

Her emotions have clearly cut off blood supply to her nose, already, but if they hadn't...

I said, if they hadn't...Hey! Are you even listening?

Huh? Oh, right. Her nose. It looks out of joint. Completely out of joint, even.

If they hadn't, I'd tell her brown noses are better.

(spiteful nose)
